

ABSTRACT

(1) Page 23, in the first paragraph,

A video display apparatus with separate display ~~means~~ unit is provided so that the textual information can be displayed without preventing viewers from watching the full picture. The separate display ~~means~~ unit can be provided for a television receiver so that textual information, which includes closed caption text and subtitles, can be displayed on the separate display ~~means~~ unit without occupying the picture area. The separate display ~~means~~ unit can be provided for a screen in a movie theater so that subtitles can be displayed on the separate display ~~means~~ unit when a foreign movie is played. The separate display unit can be used to display other textual information, including a channel number, a name of the broadcasting station, the title of the current program and the remaining time of the current program. Furthermore, ~~the separate display unit can display information on a local weather and a local time.~~ Furthermore, the separate display unit is built into the television receiver in a retractable manner so that it is hidden inside the television when the separate display unit is not in use.